- Hero section collapses as you scroll down
- Freezes most pertinent information at the top for reference
- Users do not need to jump to the top of the profile to see the highlights, address, etc.

Relative Rankings

- Matched values for real estate compared to state and nationally
- Matched values for charitable giving compared to the state and nationally
- Matched values for political giving compared to the state and national
- The goal is to anticipate the relative impression/feelings of prosperity. An average home in an expensive region with higher regional prices is not likely lead to a feeling of wealth.

Profile Keyword Search

- Data sections do not have to be open
- Keyword summary indicates the location of the matches including context, words before and words after
- Single click of the source you want jumps to that part of the profile.
- Final product will search all DS data sources and all matches.
- Leverages the new technology platform which should make it difficult to replicate.

Data Organization

- Data section organized by tabs
- Individual data fields organized into expandable tiles
- Easy navigation
- Smoother transitions
- Client decides on the logical grouping
- Custom tabs are easy to add
- Limits the scrolling up and down continuously

The interface is designed for easy navigation and data organization. It features a sidebar menu with various categories like Wealth, Giving, Industry, Nonprofits, Relationships, Bio, Custom, Profile Options, Search Profile, Generative Reports, and Refresh. The main content area is organized into tabs for Charitable Giving, Political Giving, and Crowdfunding by Donor Social. The Charitable Giving tab is expanded, showing a table of entries with columns for Listed Donor, Recipient, Recipient Location, Gift Type, Year, Low Amount, High Amount, Category, and Score. The table lists three entries for the Ellison family, showing their donations to the UC Davis Health System, Tenderloin Neighborhood Development Corporation, and the University of California Davis Health System.
